TFCU gives back to another member

Emily Powers received an unexpected surprise recently—a check from TFCU matching her recent direct deposit.

When Emily first received the news, she couldn't believe a program like Give Back existed at TFCU.

"The extra money came at the perfect time. I'm going to use it to pay off my car."

— Emily Powers

TFCU has awarded more than 892 members this year. You can be a Give Back winner in 2019 too, simply by using the TFCU products and services you love. For more information on our Give Back program and how to win, visit us online at www.TinkerFCU.org/tfcu-give-back. 💰

Tips to increase your chances of getting a job interview

According to an article from Marketing News, you can improve your odds of getting an interview by paying more attention to what recruiters are seeking.

Be prepared

Take advantage of popular job boards like Indeed and LinkedIn. Always have your cover letter and resume ready to go so you can quickly and easily tailor it to a job description. The earlier you submit your application, the better your chances of having it reviewed properly.

Don't be discouraged by rejection

If you don't hear back from an employer, it doesn't hurt to send a follow-up message to the hiring manager. Remember, only a small percentage of applicants score an interview, so don't be discouraged if it isn't you.

Keep your social profiles updated

Make sure all of your social profiles convey a consistent, professional and positive message about who you are and your work experience. Omissions or discrepancies may suggest a lack of attention to detail or that you may be hiding something from potential employers.

Highlight your skills

Employers often seek specific skills and qualities during the selection process. Be sure your job-related expertise shines above your other skills and is tailored to match key job competencies and responsibilities.

As you seek new employment opportunities, remember these tips to help you navigate and prepare. 💰

Reviewing Your Beneficiary Designations

A beneficiary designation review is an important part of your financial plan.

You have probably heard situations in which the “wrong” person inherited money intended for someone else. More often than not, this happens because the owner of the accounts failed to update his or her list of beneficiaries to reflect major life changes (marriage, divorce, birth, death, etc.).

It is important from time to time—especially after life changing events—to conduct a beneficiary review of your IRAs, retirement plans, insurance policies, annuities, trusts and bank accounts. You will not only ensure your wishes are accounted for, but also help your loved ones with the transition of your estate.

If you do not have a financial plan or would like help with your financial plan, call the professionals at TFCU Financial Advisors. They can help you tailor a financial plan that is unique to your situation and help you with your beneficiary review.
